The first part of the manuscript is a list of names, possibly of a religious or institutional nature. The text is written in a cursive hand and is arranged in several columns. The names are difficult to decipher due to the fading and the style of the script, but they appear to be organized in a structured manner, perhaps as a roll of names or a directory.

The second part of the manuscript continues the list or contains related information. It follows a similar layout to the first part, with text organized into columns. The handwriting remains consistent, and the overall structure suggests a continuation of the same type of record or list.
