A SALVER OF THE SIXTEENTH CENTURY,

BY JEAN GOUJON,

FROM

THE ORIGINAL IN THE POSSESSION OF GEORGE VIVIAN, ESQ.

Prints, 10s. 6d. Proofs, £1. 1s. Before Letters, £2. 2s.

This magnificent work of art, measuring nineteen inches in diameter, is wrought in metal by the celebrated JEAN GOUJON, who flourished in the sixteenth century, and occupies the same place in the history of the French art, that Benvenuto Cellini does in Italian.

The character and nobleness of the design of the allegorical and historical figures which grace the composition, show how greatly Primaticcio, and his school, who worked in France under the auspices of Francis the First, contributed to refine the taste of that country.

Although the design of this work exhibits many forms that are not Italian, it is marked by a fertility of invention and happy arrangement of ornament, almost in an equal degree with the best works of the same class in Italy.

The motive of the composition is an illustration of War and Peace. Mars occupies the centre. The twelve medallions—eight in the outer, and four in the inner band of ornament, contain allegorical representations of the four quarters of the globe, and of War, Envy, Peace, and Abundance, and figures of Cyrus, Æneas, Alexander the Great, and Julius Cæsar: all these are surrounded with a profusion of appropriate ornament, as trophies, cornucopie, &c.

Bridge of Cordova.

The Drawings for this Volume were made at different periods in the years 1833 and 1837. During the first period Spain was comparatively tranquil, and while the Monastic bodies were still in existence throughout the country. During the second I saw the demolition of some of the finest Convents going on, and observed the sites on which others had recently stood: the prospect of the speedy ruin of nearly all, either from their total abandonment, the want of funds to support them, or wealthy purchasers to inhabit them, made me feel a strong desire to preserve some trace of establishments, where the towers and bellies and long level lines of the buildings, the terraces and the cypresses of the gardens give an interest and character to many scenes not less in Spain than in Italy. Circumstances led me to do more than I at first intended, and the work now presented to the public contains a selection, mostly of general Views, taken in Biscay, Galicia, the Castilles, La Mancha, Catalonia, Valencia, and Andalusia. Their limited number precludes the possibility of giving more than a faint idea of the endless diversity of Scenery which marks the Spanish Peninsula. No European Country presents so great a variety as exists in the wooded mountains and valleys of Biscay - the parched and treeless tracts of old Castile - the combination of nakedness and luxuriance in Galicia, Leon and the Asturias - the wastes of La Mancha - the richness of the plain of Valencia, and the delightful Vega of Granada; reposing amidst mountains equally remarkable for beauty of form and outline; and the great rocky ranges of Catalonia, every where marked and enlivened by the industry of man. Andalusia alone offers an infinite variety of landscape, - of Valley, Sea and Mountain. The Orange, Citron, Palm and Sugar Cane flourish at the foot of the Sierras, and the Pomegranate and Oleander grow wild and luxuriant on the banks of the streams which flow through their glens. The coast scenery has often the boldness of the finest parts of Northern Europe, heightened by the glow of a Southern Sun; and the Alayzas or Watch Towers are planted at intervals along the coast line in the most picturesque situations it is possible to imagine.

In making the Drawings strict fidelity has been observed in delineating the face of the country, of its buildings and productions, and the dress and manners of its people. Upon an adherence to truth in these respects the value of drawings of scenery must principally depend.
